A. The Big Bang Theory	274
B. The Steady State Theory	275
C. The No-Boundary Proposal of Stephen Hawking	277
6.2.6 The Philosophical Significance of Modern Cosmologies	278
6.2.7 The Limits of Science	279
Chapter 7: Proposed Solution for Cosmology Conclusion	281
7.1 Whiteheadian Aesthetical Approach of the Cosmos	284
7.1.1 Klemke’s Meaning of a Purposeful Cosmology	286
7.1.2 Rejection of Scientific Materialism in Purposeful Cosmology	299
7.1.3 Acceptance of Beauty in Purposeful Cosmology	309
7.1.4 Appreciation of the Aesthetical Value in Understanding the Purposeful Cosmology	312
7.1.5 Conclusion	316
7.2 Teilhardian Christological Approach of the Cosmos	317

7.2.1	The Universe as Ordered Unity	317
A.	Teilhard’s Vision of Cosmic Unity	317
B.	The Great Option for the Whole.	321
C.	Unity as Scientific-Philosophical Presupposition	322
D.	Unity as Verified by Science	324
E.	Unity as Evolution	327
F.	A Philosophy of Cosmic Unity.	329
i.	The Primacy of Consciousness	333
7.2.2	The Universe as Intrinsically Christic	335
A.	The Universe as Created in Christ	336
B.	The Cosmic Implications of the Incarnation	342
C.	The Universe as Redeemed in Christ	352
7.2.3	Conclusion	356
7.3	Panikkarian Cosmotheandric Approach of the Cosmos . . .	360
7.3.1	The Cosmotheandric Perspective	360
A.	Some Assumptions	360
B.	Formulation	364
C.	Some Objections.	373
D.	Dimension	379
7.3.2	Transhistorical Consciousness	384
7.3.3	Toward a New Cosmology	393
7.3.4	Cosmotheandric Spirituality.	395
7.3.5	The Christophanic Experience	397
7.3.5.1	Christophany is the Symbol of Divine, Human, and Cosmic Reality.	401
7.3.6	The Emerging Mythos	404
