Contents

Foreword xv

Abstract xvii

Acknowledgment xxi

Glossary xxiii

Introduction xxv

Chapter 1: Womanist Theology: A Methodological Concern 1

1. Introduction 1
2. The Development of Womanist Theology 1
3. Emergence of Womanist Theology in the USA 3
4. Sources and Methodology of Afro-American Womanist Theology 3
5. Anthropology: Basis of Womanist Epistemological Framework 6
6. Womanist Theology and God-Talk 9
   - 6.1. Salvation in the Context of Suffering in Womanist Theology 10
   - 6.2. Sin in Womanist Theological Understanding 12
   - 6.3. Womanist Christology: An Egalitarian Christology 14
7. Womanist Theology and Feminist Theology: Divergences 16
   - 7.1. Womanist Theology on the Question of "What is Acceptably Female?" 17
   - 7.2. 'Patriarchy' in Womanist Theological Critique 18
   - 7.3. Womanist-Feminist Hermeneutical Positions 19
   - 7.4. God and the Oppressed in History, According to Womanist Theology 21
8. Womanist Theology and the Context of Naga Women 23
   - 8.1. Rationale for the Present Methodological Choice 23
   - 8.2. Womanist Methodology of Afro-American Women and Naga Women Context: Convergences and Divergences 25
     - 8.2.1. Point of Convergences 26

8.2.2. Point of Divergences 27
9. Summary 28

Chapter 2: Naga Traditional Culture and the Subordination of Female 31
1. Introduction 31
2. The Nagas: A Brief Background Information 31
3. Defining the Meaning and Usage of the Term 'Culture' 33
4. Naga Traditional Culture and Patriarchy 33
4.1. The Status and Role of Women in the Patriarchal Culture of the Nagas 34
4.1.1. Misconception about Naga Women's Status in the Society 34
4.1.1.1. Misinterpreted Role of Naga Women 36
4.2. Understanding Sex and Gender in Naga Cultural Context 38
4.2.1. Sexual Division of Labor between Men and Women 39
4.3. Naga Traditional Structures of Learning on Sexist Lines 40
4.3.1. Morung or Male Dormitory: Training Center for Traditional Male Roles of Supremacy 40
4.3.2. Ladies' Dormitory: Training Center for Traditional Female Roles of Submission 42
4.4. Factors Operative in Subjugating Women under the Patriarchal Culture of the Nagas 44
4.4.1. Patrilineal System of Descent 44
4.4.2. The Glorified Practice of Headhunting and Its Reverse Effects on Naga Women 44
4.4.2.1. Rules and Regulations for Headhunting 45
4.4.2.2. Reasons for Headhunting 46
4.4.2.3. Rituals and Ceremonies in Headhunting 46
4.4.2.4. Impact of Headhunting Culture on Naga Women 47
4.4.3. Exclusion of Women and Naga System of Land Ownership 50
4.4.3.1. Village Community Land 50
4.4.3.2. Clan / Khel Land 50
4.4.3.3. Family Land 51
4.4.4. Disqualification of Women in the Rights of Inheritance 51
4.4.5. Sexist Structure of Village Governance and Administration 53
4.4.5.1. Village State Government and Naga System of Chieftainship 53

4.4.5.2. Male / Hereditary Succession to the Power of Governance 54
4.4.6. Women and Marriage in Naga Tradition 56
4.4.6.1. Bride-Price in Naga Marriage Custom 56
4.4.6.2. Age-Eligibility for Marriage in Naga Tradition 57
4.4.7. The Practice of Feasts of Merit: A Cultural Feature for Male-Ascendancy in Status 58
4.4.7.1. Feast of Merit Connected with the Worship of, and, Invoking the Fate Deity: The First Stage 59
4.4.7.2. Feast of Merit Connected with the Bull-Slaughter Ceremony: The Second Stage 59
4.4.7.3. Feast of Merit Connected with the Mithun Sacrifice: The Third or the Final Stage 59
4.4.8. Other Male-Oriented Festivals of the Nagas 61
4.4.8.1. Salenyi Festival of Mao Nagas - A Festival of Male Purification 61
4.4.8.2. Laonii Festival of Poumai Nagas: A Festival of Male-Sanctification 62
5. Sources of Authority in Naga Tradition: Traditional Medium of Knowledge 63
5.1. Folk-Lores of the Nagas 64
5.1.1. Myths and Legends 64
5.1.2. Folk Songs and Folk Dances: Traditional Medium of Communication 64
6. Summary 66

Chapter 3: Naga Traditional Religion and the Alienation of Women 69
1. Introduction 69
1.1. Defining 'Religion' in Naga Traditional Context 69
2. Naga Traditional Religion termed 'Animism': A Misinterpretation of the Western-Christian Cultural Imperialism 69
2.1. Defining the Term and Meaning of 'Animism' 70
2.2. Naga Traditional Religion: A 'Creation-Centered Monotheism' 71
3. A Critical Reflection on the Androcentric Nature of Naga Traditional Religion 73
3.1. Male-Defined Understanding of the Divine Being 73
3.2. Sexist Nature and Structures of Naga Traditional Religion 75
3.2.1. Male-Dominated Structures of Priestly Office 75
3.3. Women-Denigrating Religious Customs and Practices 77

3.3.1. Taboos and Naga Women 77
3.3.1.1. Types of Taboos in Naga Traditional Religion 77
3.3.1.1.1. Religious Taboos 77
3.3.1.1.2. Physical/Sexual Taboos 78
3.3.1.1.3. Taboos in Relation to Women 78
3.3.1.1.4. Taboos in Relation to Men 79
3.4. Female-Discriminatory Concept of Soul in Naga Tradition 80
3.5. Inadequacy of the Naga Concept of Sin 83
3.6. Female-Degrading Life Cycle Rites in Naga Traditional Religion 84
3.6.1. Rites Related to Birth 84
3.6.2. Custom of Burials and Funerals in Naga Tradition 86
4. Naga Women's Transition from Naga Traditional Religion to Christianity and Its Affects 87
5. Naga Women's Struggle in Contemporary Christian Context 89
5.1. Male-Centered Theology and Practice of the Church 89
5.2. Male-Reserved and Male-Dominated Structures of Church Leadership 89
5.3. The Unending Struggle of Naga Women in the Church 90
6. Summary 91

Chapter 4: A Theological Critique on the Naga Traditional Worldview with Particular Reference to the Concept of 'Cosmic Oneness' 93
1. Introduction 93
2. Rationale for Employing the Methodological Tool of Re-reading the Oral Traditions 94
3. Sources of Naga Traditional Worldview 94
3.1. The Oral Traditions 95
3.1.1. Myths: Definition and Meaning 95
3.1.1.1. The Mysterious Nature and Character of the Myths 96
4. The Significance of Myths in Naga Tradition 97
5. Re-Reading the Naga Traditional Myths on the Concept of 'Cosmic Oneness' 97
5.1. The Supreme Being and His/Her/Its Relationship with the World of Creation 98
5.2. Myth on the Participation of All Creatures in the Process of Creation 98
5.3. Myth(s) on the Origin of Humans from Stones, Caves and Holes of the Earth 100
5.4. Myth on the Familial Relationship of Human and Non-Human Creatures 101

6. Nagas' Pre-Historic Connection with the South East Asia (SEA): A Pre-Requisite Aspect in Understanding the Historic Traditions of the Nagas 103
7. The Idea of No Distinction between the Sacred and the Profane in the Naga Traditional Worldview: A Re-Look at the Issue 104
8. The Idea of Communitarian and Egalitarian Naga Community vs. Patriarchal Culture of the Nagas: A Questionable Claim 106
8.1. Male-Centered Naga Socio-Political Structures: A Counter Reality to Communitarian Worldview 106
8.1.1. Naga Culture of Male-Domination over Women: Patriarchal Reality Contradicts the Idea of Communitarian and Egalitarian Naga Society 108
9. The Idea of No Distinction between History, Time and Space in Naga Traditional Worldview: Caution against the Idea of a 'Messy' Worldview 112
9.1. Nagas' Circular Understanding of History 112
9.2. Nagas' Natural-Cycle-Oriented Understanding of Time 112
9.3. The Visibility of the Distinctive Positions of the Interconnected Reality of History, Time and Space in Naga Traditional Worldview 113
10. The Necessity for Critical Reading and Interpretation of the Myths 114
10.1. Human-Nonhuman Relationship 114
10.2. Events Leading to the Nagas' Historic Migration 115
10.3. Situating the Myths Way Back Beyond the Era of Migration 116
10.4. The Nagas Historic Settlement in the North Eastern Regions of India 118
10.5. Basic Occupation of the Nagas Down through their Historic Period of Transition 119
10.6. No Historic Evidence on the Actuality of the Naga World of Cosmic Oneness 121
11. Sequel to the Myth on the Primordial Cosmic Family 122
11.1. The Breaking of the Ideal Cosmic Family: End to the Era of Paradise and the Beginning of the Era of Disruption 122
11.2. Myth on the Superiority of Humans over Other Creatures: Challenge for a Reality Check 124
12. Summary 125

Chapter 5: A Naga Womanist Re-Interpretation of the Naga Traditional Worldview for Relevancy Today 127

1. Introduction 127
2. Necessity for Naga Women's Voice in the Naga Tribal Theological Discourse 128
3. Reinterpreting the Concept of 'Cosmic Oneness' for Relevancy Today 130
   3.1. The Importance of Extracting the Fragmentary Insights from the Concept of 'Cosmic Oneness' Shrouded in the Complex Historic Realities and Worldview of the Nagas 130
   3.2. The Complementarity of Christian Theology of Creation and the Naga Traditional Worldview on the Concept of Cosmic Oneness 131
      3.2.1. The Common Ground of Creation 131
      3.2.2. The Gradual 'Becoming' Process of Creation 132
      3.2.3. On the Continuing Process/Evolution of Creation 132
      3.2.4. On the Interconnectedness of All Realities 132
      3.2.5. Understanding the Concept of 'Free Will' against the Danger of Extremity 133
4. Redeemable Insights in the Naga Traditional Worldview for Today 134
   4.1. Creation is 'Rooted' in the Creator God 135
   4.2. Creation Follows a Gradual Evolving Process 135
   4.3. The Participatory and Complementary Co-existence of Creation 136
   4.4. The Place and Responsibility of Humans within the Larger Home of Creation 136
5. Resounding Message from the Silence of the Myths on the Ideal Egalitarian Community 137
   5.1. Sexes-Role-Differentiation in Naga Tradition and Culture 138
   5.2. Patriarchal Reality Belies the Concept of 'Communitarianism' and 'Egalitarianism' 139
   5.3. Patriarchal Principle of 'Dominance-Over-Others': The Root Cause 140
   5.4. The Inevitability of Redefining Sex and Gender 141
   5.5. Deconstructing the 'Male(ness)' Image of the Divine Reality/God: Liberating the First Captive of Patriarchy 141
6. Deconstruct Patriarchy for Re-Constructing the Human Community 143
   6.1. Restructuring the Human Community on Complementary Principles 144
      6.1.1. The Question of Equality within the Complementary Culture and Worldview 145

6.1.1.1. Man and Woman as 'Equally Equal' 146
6.1.1.2. Man and Woman as 'Equally Unequal' 147
7. Summary 148

Chapter 6: Findings and Conclusion 149
1. Introduction 149
2. Findings of the Research 149
2.1. Patriarchy: The Defining Factor of the Traditional Culture, Religion and Worldview of the Nagas 149
2.2. The Question of Historicity and Validity of the Traditional Worldview of the Nagas as Picturized in the Oral Traditions 150
2.2.1. Naga Concept of Cosmic Oneness: More of the Ideal than Reality 150
2.2.2. Approaching the Sources of the Myths: The Elusive Character of the Myths 151
2.3. New Interpretations on the Re-read Sources/Myths 152
2.3.1. Myth on the Ideal Family of Co-Creatures – Man, Tiger, Spirit and Mother Earth: Truth about the Primordial Stage of Innocence of Life 152
2.3.2. Myth on the Breaking of the Original Ideal Familial Relationships of Co-Creatures 154
2.3.3. Myth on the Origin of Human Life from Stones, Hole and Ground…: Historic Symbols to Preserve the Ancestors' Historic Memoirs 154
2.3.4. Myth on the Creation of Night and Day: Creatures' Diverse Natural Affinities in the Order of the Life of Creation 155
2.3.5. Myth on the Dog in Search of a Master: Ancient Roots of Hierarchical Structure of Relationships 156
2.4. Practice of Headhunting: Factor that Boosts Male-Domination over Female in Naga Society 157
2.5. Militancy and State Violence: A Current Form of Patriarchal Violence 158
2.6. The Consonance between the Naga Tradition, Christian Tradition and Science on Creation 159
2.6.1. Creation has a Beginning: Divine Cause and Creator of the Universe 160
2.6.2. Creation Follows a Gradual Process of Coming-into-Being 160
2.6.3. Creation is not 'Immune' to Contingencies 161
2.6.4. Creation is not a Static or an Exhaustive Reality 161

2.6.5. Creation is Dynamically Heading toward Its Goal or Fulfillment 162
2.6.6. Creation is Characterized by a Unity of Diversified Clustered Structures and Forms of Its Life 163
3. Implications and Challenges for a Holistic Worldview 164
3.1. Humanity: A Responsible Species 'among' and 'within' the Cosmic Home of Diversity 164
3.2. Necessity for Re-Thinking, Re-Formulating and Re-Guiding Life toward the Fullness of Life 166
3.2.1. Necessity to Redefine 'Theology' and 'Worldview' 166
3.2.1.1. The Priority of Re-Thinking About God for Holistic God-Talk 167
3.2.1.2. Re-Conceptualizing Human Sexuality and Gender 169
4. Conclusion: The Naga Traditional Worldview in a New Light for Today 170

Bibliography 175