Contents

Foreword xi
Acknowledgements xiii
General Introduction xv
1. The Scope of the Study xvi
2. Sources xviii
3. Methodology xix
4. Content and Structure xx
5. Typography and Mode of Citation xxi
6. Limits xxii
7. Originality and Relevance of the Study xxii

Chapter 1: Jacob of Serugh: The Context of His Life and Literary Works A Brief Introduction 1

Introduction 1
1. The Vita of Jacob of Serugh 2
   1.1. Sources of Biographic Information 2
   1.2. Information from His Literary Works 4
   1.3. The Life of Jacob of Serugh 4
      1.3.1. Birth and Early Period 4
      1.3.2. Theological Education and Early Literary Activities 5
      1.3.3. Ministerial Life and Later Literary Activities 5
2. Historical and Theological Climate of Jacob of Serugh 7
   2.1. Edessan Christianity at the Time of Jacob 10
   2.2. Picture of Edessa in the Literary Works of Jacob of Serugh 12
   2.3. The School of Edessa 14

3. The Christological Position of Jacob of Serugh 16
4. The Writings of Jacob of Serugh 18
4.1. A Brief Survey of the Literary Works of Jacob of Serugh 19
4.1.1. On Old Testament 21
4.1.2. On New Testament 21
4.1.3. On Liturgical Year 21
4.1.4. On Liturgical Services 21
4.1.5. On Saints 21
4.1.6. On Other Topics 22
5. Metrical Hymnody of Jacob of Serugh 23
6. The Man Behind the Mēmrē 23
6.1. An Ascetic 23
6.2. Pious Pastor and Spiritual Poet 24
6.3. Divine Invocation 25
6.4. Scripture as the Cornerstone of the Homilies of Jacob 25
Conclusion 26

Chapter 2: History of Hexameral Narratives: An Introductory Survey 27
Introduction 27
1. Biblical Account of Creation 28
2. Hexameron Origin and Development 32
2.1. Philo 33
2.2. Theophilus of Antioch and Origen 33
2.3. Basil the Great 34
2.4. The Followers of Basil 35
3. Hexameral Narratives in the Syriac Tradition 37
3.1. Ephrem the Syrian 37
3.2. Narsai 39
3.3. Later Hexameral Writers 40
3.3.1. The East Syrian Tradition 40
3.3.2. West Syrian Tradition 42
4. The Concept of "Nature as a Mystery": A Preliminary Investigation in the Writings of the Church Fathers 45
4.1. The Term "Mystery" 45
4.2. Early Syriac Fathers 47
4.3. Greek Fathers 49
Conclusion 51

Chapter 3: The Homilies on the Third and Fourth Days of Creation: A Critical, Liturgical, and Exegetical Analysis 53

Introduction 53
1. Status Quaestionis 54
2. A Critical Analysis of Jacob's Homily on the Third and Fourth Days of Creation 55
   2.1. Manuscripts of the Homily 56
      2.1.1. British Library Add. 14,584 (Ms. BM. Add. 14,584) 56
      2.1.2. British Library Add. 12,162 (Ms. BM. Add. 12,162) 56
      2.1.3. Ms. Vat. Syr. 115 56
      2.1.4. Ms. Oxford, Bodleian Library, Syr. 135 (Poc. 404) 57
      2.1.5. Arabic Manuscripts of Hexameron of Jacob 58
         2.1.5.1. Ms. Aleppo Salem Ar. 36, foll. 173r-192r 58
         2.1.5.2. Ms. Cairo Ar. 238, foll. 160r-177r 58
         2.1.5.3. Ms. Cairo Ar. 283, foll. 3r-28v 58
         2.1.5.4. Ms. Cairo Ar. 304, foll. 82r-93v, 81rv, 94r-100r 58
         2.1.5.5. Ms. Cairo, Coptic Cath. Patr. 7. 15 59
         2.1.5.6. Ms. Cairo Ar. 314 59
         2.1.5.7. Ms. Dayr Abū Maqār 335 59
         2.1.5.8. Ms. Dayr al-Baramus 2/38, no. 1 59
         2.1.5.9. Ms. Florence Bibl. Naz. NA 685, foll. 232-259v 59
         2.1.5.10. Ms. London BL Or. 4710, foll. 213r-238r 59
         2.1.5.11. Ms. Paris Bibl. Nat. Ar. 4760, foll. 235r-264r 60
         2.1.5.12. Ms. Paris Bibl. Nat. Ar. 4897, foll. 27v-66v 60
   2.2. Date of the Homily 60
   2.3. Metrical Hymnody of the Homily 64
   2.4. Divisions of the Homily 65
      2.4.1. The First Day of Creation 65
      2.4.2. The Second Day of Creation 65
      2.4.3. The Third Day of Creation 66
      2.4.4. The Fourth Day of Creation 66
      2.4.5. The Fifth Day of Creation 66
      2.4.6. The Sixth Day of Creation 67
      2.4.7. The Seventh Day of Creation 67
   2.5. Style of the Homily 67
   2.6. Peculiarities of the Homily 68
3. Liturgical Use of the Homily 69
4. The Mode of Scriptural Exegesis of Jacob 70
   4.1. Spiritual Interpretation 72
   4.2. Typological Exegesis 73

5. The Scripture of Jacob of Serugh 73
6. Moral Teachings in the Homily 75
6.1. Instructions to the Youth 75
6.2. Instructions about Humility 76
7. Jacob's Approach Towards Creation 79
7.1. Faith is Necessary to Speak about Creation 79
7.2. Purity is Required for the Discernment of God's Creation 81
7.3. Ascending Mind is Necessary in Order to Narrate Creation 82
7.4. Knowledge is Necessary for the Narration on Creation 83
7.5. The Whole Creation Made by the Holy Trinity 83
7.6. Scripture is the Principle Source of Hexameron 84
7.7. Hexameron is a Praising Hymn to God 85
7.8. Denies the Existence of Second Cause 86
Conclusion 86

Chapter 4: Theological Themes in the Homilies on the Third and Fourth Days of Creation 89

Introduction 89
1. Theological Themes in the Homilies 90
1.1. Creation from Nothingness (ܡܢ ܠܐ ܡܕܡ) 91
1.1.1. Concept of Nothingness 93
1.1.2. God's Activity in Nothingness 94
2. Creative Activity of God (ܦܥܠܐ) 96
2.1. Creation in the Month of Nisan 97
2.2. The Importance of the Third Day 100
3. The Motives of Creation 102
3.1. The Grace (ܛܝܒܘܬܐ) 102
3.2. The Love (ܚܘܒܐ) 103
3.3. The Clemency (ܪܘܓܙ) 104
3.4. The Mercy (ܪܚܡܝ) 105
3.5. Goodness (ܛܝܒܘܬܐ) 106
3.6. Lowliness / Humility (ܡܟܝܟܘܬܐ) 106
4. The Various Expressions of the Act of Creation 106
4.1. The Movement (ܚܘܝܐ) 107
4.2. The Sign (ܪܡܙܐ) 108
4.3 The Hidden Power (ܚܝܠܐ ܣܬܝܪܐ) / 110
Divine Power (ܐܠܗܝܘܬܐ ܣܬܝܪܐ)
4.4. The Voice (ܩܠܐ) 111
4.5. The Word (ܡܠܬܐ) 113
4.6. The Commandment (ܦܩܕܢܐ) 115

5. Jacob Vision on God in the Homilies 117
5.1. God as a Creator/Maker 117
5.2. God as a Mother 119
5.3. God as a Champion/Mighty One 121
5.4. God as a Painter 122
5.5. God as a System Maker 123
5.6. God as the Wise 124
6. Anthropological Concepts in the Homilies on the Third and Fourth Days of Creation 125
6.1. Adam was Generated as an Adult, Not a Child 126
6.2. Nature is Created for Humanity 129
Conclusion 132

Chapter 5: Jacob of Serugh's Ecological Vision on Creation 135

Introduction 135
1. Creation as a 'Mystery' 136
2. Jacob's Vision on Earth 139
2.1. Earth as a Creation of God 139
2.2. The Earth as a Mother 140
2.3. Relation between God and Earth 143
2.3.1. Bridegroom – Bride 144
2.3.2. Lord – Handmaid 145
2.4. The Whole Vegetative World is God's Adornment 147
2.4.1. Bread, Wine and Olive 148
3. Jacob's Vision on Nature 150
3.1. Nature as God's Creature 151
3.2. Nature is Holy 153
4. The Cosmological Vision of Jacob of Serugh 154
4.1. The Cosmos Created by God 155
4.2. The Whole Cosmos Moved by God's Hidden Power 156
4.3. The Luminaries are God's Creation 157
4.4. The Luminaries are God's Adornment in the Firmament 159
4.5. The Luminaries are Illuminated by God's Light and Grace 159
4.6. Functions of Luminaries 161
4.6.1. As a Sign and for the Time and Season 163
4.6.2. The Sun and Moon Germinate and Cause to Flourish the Vegetation on the Earth 164
4.6.3. Luminaries Encourage to Worship 164
4.7. Luminaries Glorify and Manifest the Creator 165
Conclusion 167

Chapter 6: Conclusion and Present Application of the Homily 169
Introduction 169
1. Context of the Homily 169
1.1. Mesopotamian Creation Account 173
1.2. Jacob's Message to His Age 174
2. Sources of Jacob 175
2.1. Greek Influence 175
2.2. Early Syriac Fathers 177
2.3. Narsai 178
3. Present Application of Jacob's Homily on Hexameron 183
3.1. Ecological Crisis in the Present Age 184
3.1.1. Water and Atmospheric Pollution 184
3.1.2. Deforestation and Climate Changes 185
3.1.3. Loss of Biodiversity 186
3.2. Relevance of the Homily on Creation in the Context of Ecological Crisis 186
Conclusion 188
General Conclusion 191
Appendix 1 201
Appendix 2 215
Appendix 3 233
Transliteration Table 235
Acronyms and Abbreviations 237
Bibliography 245