Contents

Chapter 1: Introduction 1

1.1 The Essence of Religion 2
1.2 The Unfolding of the Concept of Transcendence 3
1.3 The Concept of Transcendence 4
1.4 Reasons for the Choice of the Topic 5
1.5 LIfe Sketch of Louis Dupré 6
1.6 A Brief Summary of Dupré's Theory 7
1.7 Works of Louis Dupré 7
1.8 The Aim of the Study 9
1.9 A Preview of the Chapters 9

Chapter 2: The Concept of Transcendence 13

2.1 Transcendence as a Search 13
2.1.1 A Constant Quest 14
2.1.2 A Feeling of Uneasiness 14
2.1.3 The Secularization of Life 15
2.2 The Term Transcendence 16
2.3 Transcendence as Experience 17
2.3.1 The Experience of Relatedness and Finitude 17
2.3.2 Religious Experience 18
2.3.3 Religious Experience and Transcendence 20
2.4 Different Approaches to Transcendence 20
2.4.1 Cosmological Transcendence 21
2.4.2 Ontological Transcendence 21
2.4.3 Epistemological Transcendence 21
2.4.4 Phenomenological Transcendence 21
2.4.5 Mathematical Transcendence 22
2.4.6 Religious Transcendence 22

2.5 The Sacred and the Holy 23
2.6 Ultimate Reality 24
2.6.1 The Ultimate Reality in Different Religions 25
2.7 The Problem of Transcendence 26
2.7.1 The Difficulties that are Encountered 27
2.7.2 Many Possible Understandings of Transcendence 28
2.8 Transcendence and Immanence 29
2.9 Transcendence and Being 31
2.9.1 Pan-entheism 32
2.9.2 The Insufficiency of the Scientific Means to go Beyond 32
2.10 Dupré and Transcendence 33
2.10.1 Transcendence and the Religious Act 34
2.10.2 Rationale for Metaphysics and Philosophy of Religion 35
2.11 Conclusion 36

Chapter 3: The Religious Subject 39
3.1 The Self as Open to Transcendence 40
3.1.1 The Philosophical Stages of Self Discovery 40
3.1.1.1 The Discovery of the Subject 40
3.1.1.2 The Content of the Subject 41
3.1.1.3 The Isolation of the Subject 41
3.1.1.4 The Subject and the Object 43
3.1.2 The Nature of the Self 44
3.1.2.1 Self and the Person 44
3.1.2.2 Self and the Body 45
3.1.2.3 Self and Consciousness 45
3.1.3 Self as Subject 47
3.1.3.1 From the Self to the Subject 47
3.1.3.2 The Contribution of Descartes 48
3.1.4 The Subject, Morality and Religion 49
3.1.4.1 Descartes 49
3.1.4.2 Kant 50
3.1.4.3 John Henry Newman 50
3.1.5 Conclusion 51
3.2 Transcendence that is Challenged in Culture 51
3.2.1 The First Transformation of Culture: The Subject as the Source of Rationality 52
3.2.2 The Second Transformation: The Meaning and Role of the Self 55

3.2.3 The Third Transformation: The Disappearance of Transcendence 56
3.2.4 The Loss of Transcendence 59
3.2.4.1 Karl Marx 60
3.2.4.2 Nietzsche 60
3.2.5 Loss of Inwardness 61
3.3 Alienation a Block to Transcendence 62
3.3.1 Different Aspects of Alienation 63
3.3.1.1 Socio-economic Alienation 63
3.3.1.2 Cultural Alienation 64
3.3.1.3 Existential Alienation 64
3.3.1.4 Religious Alienation 65
3.3.1.4.1 Sin as Alienation 66
3.3.1.5 Self-Alienation 67
3.3.1.6 Conclusion 68
3.3.2 Alienation and Transcendence in the Light of Nature and Grace 68
3.3.2.1 An Initial Synthesis 69
3.3.2.1.1 The Form Principle 69
3.3.2.1.2 The Concept of Nature 69
3.3.2.1.3 Grace 70
3.3.2.1.4 Nature and Grace 70
3.3.2.1.5 Natural and Supernatural 71
3.3.2.2 The Disintegration of the Medieval Synthesis 71
3.3.2.2.1 The Separation of Nature and Grace 71
3.3.2.2.2 God's Potentia Absoluta and Potentia Ordinata 72
3.3.2.2.3 The Beginning of the Dualism 72
3.3.2.2.4 The Separation 73
3.3.2.2.5 The Religious Naturalism of Nicholas of Cusa 74
3.4 Conclusion 76

Chapter 4: The Religious Object 77
4.1 The Religious Attitude 77
4.1.1 The Religious Attitude as Dialectical 78
4.1.1.1 The Sacred and the Profane 78
4.1.1.2 Power of Integration 79
4.1.1.3 Salvation and the Dialectical Movement 80
4.1.1.4 The Rise of Secularity 81
4.1.1.5 The Gradual Loss of the Religious Attitude 81
4.1.2 Factors Giving Rise to the Religious Attitude 82

4.1.2.1 The Mysteriousness of the Universe 83
4.1.2.2 The Awareness of Contingency 83
4.1.2.3 The Givenness of Existence 84
4.1.2.4 A Sense of Community 84
4.2 Transcendence and the Religious Object 85
4.2.1 The Concept of the Religious Object 86
4.2.1.1 Its Origins in Philosophy, Myth and Religion 86
4.2.1.2 Metaphysics as Theology 87
4.2.1.3 Metaphysics and the Religious Idea of God 88
4.2.1.4 Why Proofs are Inadequate—the Object of Religious Act 88
4.2.1.5 Transcendence and the Ultimate Reality 89
4.2.1.5.1 Metaphysics of Being 89
4.2.1.5.2 Metaphysics of Consciousness 90
4.2.2 Some Aspects of the Religious Object 91
4.2.2.1 The Divine Names 91
4.2.2.2 Power and Holiness 92
4.2.2.3 God as Being 93
4.2.2.4 Participation 94
4.2.2.5 The Infinite and the Finite 95
4.2.2.6 God and Creatures 95
4.2.2.7 Is God Contingent? 96
4.2.2.8 God's Omnipotence 97
4.2.2.9 God as Personal 98
4.3 The Significance of the Other Dimension 99
4.3.1 Subjectivity and Transcendence 99
4.3.2 The Mystery of Creation 100
4.3.3 Revelation and Our Experience of the Other Dimension 101
4.3.4 How the Transcendent Reveals Itself 103
4.3.5 The Transcendent and the Sacred 104
4.3.5.1 Loss of Importance of Sacred 105
4.3.6 The Other Dimension and the Inward Turn 106
4.3.6.1 Religious Faith 107
4.3.6.2 Dupré on Faith 108
4.4 Conclusion 110

Chapter 5: The Religious Act: Method and Truth 113
5.1 A Method Based on Experience 113
5.1.1 Husserl and the Intentionality of Experience 114

5.1.1.1 The Immanence and Transcendence of the Religious Object 115
5.1.1.2 Transcendence from an Objective Point of View 116
5.1.1.3 Transcendence from a Subjective Point of View 117
5.1.1.4 Conclusion 118
5.1.2 Blondel and the Reflection on Experience 119
5.1.2.1 The Dialectic of Action 120
5.1.2.2 Our Experience of the Supernatural 121
5.1.2.3 The Contingent Character of Reflection 122
5.1.2.4 Conditions for Reflection on a Hypothetical Supernatural 123
5.1.3 Duméry and the Reduction of Experience 124
5.1.3.1 The New Way of Looking at Religious Experience 125
5.1.3.1.1 Phenomenology 125
5.1.3.1.2 Faith and Religious Experience 126
5.1.3.2 The Theory of Transcendental Reduction 128
5.1.3.3 Autonomy, Act-Law and the Creative Self 129
5.1.3.4 Revelation 130
5.1.3.5 The Dialectic of Givenness and Projection 132
5.1.3.6 Dupré's Evaluation of Duméry 133
5.1.4 Conclusion 134
5.2 On Religious Truth 134
5.2.1 Some Conceptions of Truth 135
5.2.2 The Truth in Religion 136
5.2.2.1 Augustine 137
5.2.2.2 Anselm 137
5.2.2.3 Thomas Aquinas 138
5.2.2.4 After Aquinas—Nominalism 139
5.2.3 The Truth of Religion 140
5.2.3.1 Religious Truth as Correspondence 141
5.2.3.2 Religious Truth as Coherence 142
5.2.3.3 Truth as Disclosure 143
5.2.3.3.1 Gadamer 143
5.2.3.3.2 Hegel 144
5.2.3.3.3 Religious Truth as Disclosure 145
5.2.4 Religious Truth 146
5.3 Conclusion 147

Chapter 6: The Path to Transcendence 149
6.1 Introduction 149

6.1.1 The Self and Consciousness 149
6.1.2 The Mystical Experience of the Self 151
6.1.3 Dupré on Transcendence 153
6.2 The Genesis of the Reunion 155
6.2.1 Humanist Religion and Renaissance Theology 156
6.2.1.1 Lorenzo Valla 156
6.2.1.2 Erasmus 156
6.2.1.3 Ficino 157
6.2.2 The Reformation 158
6.2.2.1 Luther 158
6.2.2.2 Calvin 159
6.2.3 The Jansenist Attempt 160
6.3 A Provisional Synthesis 161
6.3.1 Devout Humanism 163
6.3.1.1 Ignatius of Loyola 163
6.3.1.2 Francis de Sales 164
6.3.2 The Religion of the Heart in the Reformation 165
6.3.3 The Baroque: The Last Synthesis 166
6.4 Arriving at the Synthesis 168
6.4.1 Mysticism and the Deeper Life 169
6.4.1.1 The Way Inward 169
6.4.1.2 Recollection and Memory 170
6.4.2 The Being and Manifestation of God 171
6.4.2.1 God's Being 172
6.4.2.2 The Poverty of God 173
6.4.2.3 From Poverty to a Second Negation 174
6.4.2.4 Love 175
6.4.2.4.1 Christian Agape 175
6.4.2.4.2 Christian Mystics and Agape 176
6.4.2.5 The Second Negation 177
6.5 The Three-Fold Path of Transcendence 178
6.5.1 The Way of Purgation 179
6.5.1.1 Awareness 179
6.5.1.2 Detachment 179
6.5.2 The Way of Illumination 180
6.5.2.1 Visions 181
6.5.2.1.1 The Content of Visions 182
6.5.2.1.2 The Dark Illumination of Visions 182
6.5.2.1.3 Intellectual Vision 183

6.5.3 Union with God 184
6.5.3.1 Divine Gnosis 185
6.5.3.2 The Image of God 185
6.5.3.3 Growing Toward the Image 186
6.5.3.4 The Union that Leads to Transcendence 188
6.5.3.4.1 Dynamism and Rest 188
6.5.3.4.2 The Spiritual Life as Union 189
6.5.3.4.3 God and the Soul 190
6.5.3.4.4 Union with God through Works 190
6.5.3.4.5 The Rhythm that Leads to Transcendence 192
6.6 Conclusion 193

Chapter 7: Critical Appraisal of Dupré's Concept of Transcendence 195
7.1 A Critique of Dupré's Thought 196
7.1.1 The Self 196
7.1.2 God or the Absolute 197
7.1.2.1 On God 197
7.1.2.2 The Dialectical Movement Towards Transcendence 198
7.1.2.3 On Causality in General 199
7.1.2.4 Participation 200
7.1.3 Representation 201
7.1.4 Religious Experience 202
7.1.4.1 Intentions of Experience 202
7.1.4.2 Reflection and Experience 203
7.1.5 Mysticism 205
7.1.6 The Methods used by Dupré 206
7.1.6.1 The Psychological Method 206
7.1.6.2 The Philosophical Method 206
7.1.6.3 The Religious Method 207
7.1.6.4 The Phenomenological Method 207
7.1.6.5 Dupré's use of the Phenomenological Method 208
7.2 The Justification of Transcendence 210
7.2.1 Man as a Thinking and Reflecting Being 210
7.2.2 Values as Connected to the Absolute 212
7.2.3 The Absolute as Present and Known 213
7.2.3.1 Transcendence in this World 213
7.2.3.2 Transcendence and Immanence 214
7.2.3.3 A Presence that is Real 215
7.2.4 The Absolute that can be Known 216
7.2.4.1 Transcendence and Knowledge of the Transcendent 216

7.2.4.2 The Capacity for Knowing 217
7.2.4.3 Reflection and Judgement 218
7.2.4.4 The Truth of Religion 221
7.2.5 Religious Experience 222
7.2.5.1 Our Experience of the Transcendent 222
7.2.5.2 The Integral Experience 223
7.2.5.3 Religious Experience and the Essence of Religion 224
7.2.6 From an Absolute that is Known to God 225
7.2.6.1 The Ineffability of God 225
7.2.6.2 Human Knowledge of the Transcendental Dimension 226
7.2.6.3 The Sense of the Sacred 229
7.2.6.4 Openness to Being 230
7.2.6.5 Man's Openness and Dynamism Towards His End 232
7.2.6.6 Transmediated Intuition 233
7.2.7 The Specific Presence of God in Mysticism 236
7.2.7.1 The Image of God 237
7.2.8 Conclusion 238

General Conclusion 241

Bibliography 245