

Contents

Preface	ix
Abbreviations	xi
List of Illustrations	xvii
List of Table	xvii
Introduction	xix
Chapter 1: Class Stratification in the First Century Mediterranean World	1
Introduction	1
1. Methodological Consideration	2
1.1. The Class Theories	3
1.1.1. The Conquest Theory	3
1.1.2. The Economic Theory	7
1.1.2.1. Karl Heinrich Marx	7
1.1.2.2. Max Weber	11
1.1.2.3. Erik Olin Wright	13
1.2. Class in the First Century Roman Mediterranean World	16
2. Class Division in Greco-Roman Society	23
2.1. The Greek Society	23
2.1.1. Class in the Classical Period	23
2.1.2. Class in the Hellenistic Period	25
2.2. The Roman Society	26
2.2.1. Class in the Roman Republic	26
2.2.2. Slaves Uprising against Upper Class	28
2.2.3. Class in the Roman Empire	30
2.2.4. The Upward Mobility of Classes	31

3. Class Division in Jewish Society	32
3.1. The Upper Class	34
3.2. The Lower Class	38
3.3. The Underclass	39
3.4. "Middle Class" an Anachronistic Interpretation	40
4. Class Conflict in Roman Palestine	41
Summary	44
Chapter 2: The Social World of Luke	47
Introduction	47
1. Luke, A Mediterranean Man	48
1.1. His Native Place	48
1.2. The Recipients of Luke's Gospel	49
1.3. Date of His Writing	51
1.4. The Political Context of Luke	51
2. Mediterranean Society	52
2.1. Cross-Cultural Perspective and Sociological Model	52
2.2. Types of Societies	54
2.2.1. Vidya Bhushan and D. R. Sachdeva	55
2.2.2. Gideon Sjoberg	55
2.2.3. Gerhard E. Lenski and Jean Lenski	57
2.3. Type of the First Century Mediterranean Society	61
3. Mediterranean Cultural Unity	62
3.1. Honour and Shame	65
3.1.1. Honour and Shame in Luke	68
3.1.2. Subversion of Honour-Shame Syndrome and Gender Hegemony in Luke	69
3.2. Patron and Client	70
3.2.1. Patron-Client Relations in Luke	74
3.2.2. Subversion of Patron-Client Relation in Luke	74
4. Mediterranean Countryside and Cities	75
4.1. Countryside	77
4.1.1. Countryside in Luke	82
4.2. Cities	82
4.2.1. Cities in Luke	87
5. Mediterranean Economy	87
5.1. Agrarian Economy	88
5.2. Rural and Urban Economy	90
5.3. Luke's Economic Interest	92
5.4. Subversion of Economic Inequality in Luke	92
6. Politics in the Mediterranean World	93
6.1. Political Unification of Mediterranean	93
6.2. Roman Imperialism	94

2.1.7.	Luke 19: 12-27 – Resisting Class Prerogative	170
2.1.7.1.	Setting and Structure of Luke 19: 12-27	170
2.1.7.2.	Class Conflict and Non-Violent Resistance	174
2.1.8.	Luke 20: 9-15a – Class Resistance	179
2.1.8.1.	Setting and Structure of Luke 20: 9-15a	179
2.1.8.2.	Inter-Class Conflict and Spiral of Violence	182
2.2.	Passages which Indirectly Refer to Subversion of Class Hierarchy	187
2.2.1.	Luke 12: 16-21 – The Fall of the Upper Class	185
2.2.2.	Luke 14: 12-14 – Call to Subvert Class Hierarchy	187
2.2.3.	Luke 15: 11-32 – The Fall and Rise of Class Status	188
2.2.4.	Luke 18: 2-5 – Women and Class Rigidity	191
2.2.5.	Luke 18: 9-14 – Class and Spirituality	193
2.2.6.	Luke 22: 25-27 – Inauguration of a New Social Order	194
2.2.7.	Luke 24: 19-21a – Jesus, the Redeemer	196
	Summary	198
Chapter 4: Subversion of Class Hierarchy in the Theology of Luke and Its Relevance to Post-Independent India		203
	Introduction	203
1.	Theology of Luke	204
1.1.	Subversion of Class Hierarchy in Lucan Theology	207
2.	Relevance of the Study to Post-Independent India	215
2.1.	Class in Caste	215
2.2.	Indian Social Classes	217
2.3.	Relevance	222
	Conclusion	225
	Bibliography	233