

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction	xiii
1. Philosophical Influences on Karl Rahner	1
1.1. The Thomistic Interpretation of Human Bivalence	3
1.2. Marécalian-Kantian “Apprehension of Finite Being” & “Pre-apprehension of Absolute Being”	8
1.3. The Heideggerian Concept of Dasein and the “Question” of the “Horizon of Being”	12
1.4. Human Transcendental Intercommunication	15
1.5. Human Freedom	17
2. The Ontology of the Symbol	25
2.1. Symbolic Expression, Symbolic Representation and Symbolic Reality	25
2.2. Multiple Expressions of the Soul	29
2.3. The Human Body as Symbol of Expression	30
3. God’s Self-Communication	35
3.1. Human Concupiscence	35
3.2. Questioning about God	39
3.3. Hearers of the “Word”	40
3.4. Revelation and God’s Self-communication in Christian History	43

4. Jesus Christ – Grammar of God’s Expression	49
4.1. The Absolute Self-communication of God	50
4.2. Hypostatic Union	52
4.3. The Logos	56
4.4. The Consciousness of Jesus	58
5. Trinitarian Communication	65
5.1. The Ways Jesus Communicated	65
5.2. The Father and his Kingdom: The Content of Jesus’ Communication	69
5.3. The Holy Spirit: Consoler and Continuity of Christ’s Presence in the World	70
5.4. Divine Communication as Trinitarian Communion	72
6. The Church – The Embodiment of God’s Grace	75
6.1. The Church	75
6.2. The Sacraments	81
6.3. The Kerygma	83
6.4. The Liturgy	86
7. The Mission – Sharing the Good News	89
7.1. Witnessing with One’s Life	90
7.2. The Witnessing of Mary	91
7.3. The Saints and Models of Christian Witnessing	94
7.4. Witnessing Through Language, Music, Art and Media	96
7.5. Witnessing Through Social Development and Peacebuilding	100
7.6. Witnessing Through Dialogue	105
7.7. Anonymous Christianity	108
7.8. Witnessing Through Death and Martyrdom	114

8. Critique of Rahner's "Communication Theology"	119
8.1. An Appraisal of Rahner's "Communication Theology"	119
8.2. Some of Rahner's Critics and their Views	125
9. Rahnerian Communication Potential	137
9.1. Rahner's Starting Point: The Urge to Question	137
9.2. An Inclusive Philosophical Anthropology for a Communication Theology	139
9.3. The Method of Communicating his Insights	140
9.4. Communication as the Ontological Pre-condition for being Human	140
9.5. Communication as Our Conscious Response to God's Self-communication	143
9.6. Symbolic Self-expression as Climax of being and Becoming	145
9.7. The Church's Response to God's Self-communication in History	147
9.8. Communication and Eschatology	151
10. Rahner's Theology and Communication Theories	155
10.1. Harold Lasswell: The Linear Communication Process	156
10.2. Marshall McLuhan - 'Father of Media Studies'	161
10.3. James Carey – Culture as Communication	167
10.4. F. X. Dance – Communication as Evolution	169
Conclusion	173
Bibliography	177